DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. The reply filed on 03/31/03 consists of remarks related to rejections of claims.

The claims are not allowable as explained below.

2. Upon further search and review, the finality of the rejection of the last Office action is withdrawn and a new non-final rejection follows.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 1-4 and 12-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Iyengar et al. in view of DiGiovanni et al (5,802,236).

Iyengar (Figures 8-11) shows an optical fiber having a core region 35 of a homogeneous medium and a plurality of cladding regions 36-40 made of homogeneous materials surrounding the core region forming a multi-fold rotational symmetry (plurality of concentric regions) wherein the refractive indices of the cladding regions are different and the refractive indices of several regions are lower than those of the two adjacent regions. Iyengar shows the refractive index of the core region being greater than that of the cladding regions. But Iyengar does not show some of the cladding region having a plurality of sub medium regions with refractive index lower than that of the main medium and a hexagonal structure. DiViovanni (Figures 1-5) shows cladding regions with sub medium regions (voids) with refractive index lower than that of the main medium (silica) constituting the cladding region. Figures 2 and 5 shows a sub medium having a hexagonal cell 23, 52. Figure 6 shows the chromatic dispersion of the optical fiber at a number of wavelengths. Also see Column 3, lines 12-37, 53-65; Column 5, lines 57-60; Column 6, lines 3-9, Column 6, lines 3-9; Column 7, lines 47-54; Column 8, lines 37-44 and Column 10, lines 1-12 for description.

5. Claims 5-11 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Iyengar et al. in view of DiGiovanni et al (5,802,236).

Iyengar and DiGiovanni show all the features of these claims except specific values or relative values of the refractive indices, certain operating parameters such as optical power and wavelengths and the use of another fiber with positive chromatic dispersion. DiGiovanni discloses the use of another fiber for compensating dispersion to be known. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the instant invention to provide these features and select certain values and parameters for the Iyengar fiber as modified by DiGiovanni because it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material and operating parameters on the basis of its suitability for the intended use.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-15 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. Iyengar shows a plurality of cladding regions having refractive index lower than those of the two adjacent layers.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Unger and Zarian et al also show an optical fiber with a core and a plurality of claddings .
